Hot Meals for Seniors

By JANET PARKER
Staff Writer

Steam still is rising from the foil carton as Harry Ellis lifts the cardboard lid.

Inside, there's a hot meal, mostly of convenience foods — stuffed cabbage, carrots and sesame seed rolls.

But to Ellis — who lives alone in a Pacifica trailer court — it is a gourmet feast.

"It's keeping me here. If I didn't have it, I'd be in a nursing home," Ellis said, readying for his lunch.

To millions of Americans lunch is an incurable habit — something they wouldn't dare to go without.

But for others — like Ellis — it's a privilege.

Ellis and nine other Pacifica residents recently became part of a countywide Meals on Wheels program.

Funded by the federal Older Americans Act through the country, the program provides hot lunch five days a week to homebound senior citizens, who might otherwise not eat at all.

Meals are prepared at sites in Daly City, South San Francisco, San Mateo, Redwood City and East Palo Alto and delivered to homes within a six-mile radius.

For the service, the 250 recipients throughout the county donate as much as they are financially able — usually up to $5 a week.

"Poor nutrition definitely affects the health of seniors," said Pacifica Seniors in Action director Beverly Brice. "I think sometimes doctors push pills for things when they really don't need to."

On July 26, the first car laden with hot meals set out on the Pacifica route that meanders through the city, from Pacifica Manor to Linda Mar.

The Pacifica segment of the program is funded for $2,300 — enough for three or four months of meals to 10 shut-ins.

After six months, says the program director, Judy Littlefield, they are hoping for donations to sustain the program.

Most of the meals are delivered to persons well over 60 years old, Mrs. Littlefield said.

One couple receiving meals at their home just isn't strong enough to prepare their own, she said. The hus-

Union Official Accuses City of 'Strikebreaking'

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Observers predict that the Daly City Scavenger Co. strike will be a long one.

There have been no further negotiating sessions between either side in the current dispute since talks before a federal mediator in San Francisco broke off two weeks ago.

In fact, the chief negotiator for the scavengers, former Daly City Councilman Paul Hupf, is on a two week vacation and is reportedly out of town.

Charges of "irresponsibility" have been leveled against the striking scavengers, members of Local 350, Sanitary Workers Union, by the scavenger company's representatives.

And Robert Morales, secretary-treasurer of the union, has called the city's takeover of the Mussel Rock dump and distribution of free garbage bags to residents "strikebreaking tactics."

Morales, in an interview with this newspaper last week, denied that he had abruptly walked out of a meeting before federal mediator Tom Cudrye last week without studying the latest pay and fringe benefit proposals made by the scavenger company.

Since the talks began some months ago, the scavenger company has upped its wage and fringe benefit proposals, and the union lowered its sights from 1 per hour per year for the next three years (total $3) to 80 cents the first year and 75 cents for the two remaining years of the contract.

The scavenger company has offered employees 61 cents per hour in the first contract year, with 55 cents per hour increases during the next two years; also, a 10-cent per hour cost-of-living increase, plus additional days off.

Employees currently are paid $6.17 per hour.

Hupf believes the Daly City proposal is better than the agreement reached between the union and the Coastside Scavenger Co. last month.

Morales disagrees.

Pacifica's scavengers settled for 75-cent per-hour increases in the first year, with 60-cent hikes in the two succeeding years.

This would bring base salaries of Coastside scavengers up to $6.68, $7.28 and $7.99.

Morales said there is more to it than just the pay increase.

"Pacifica gives us 15 cents per hour more in pensions, while Daly City wants to give us five cents. And Pacifica pays triple time on holidays while Daly City only pays its workers for 18 hours," Morales said.

The union wants two more days sick leave per year.

Morales claims the scavengers have not offered them additional sick leave time off. Hupf says they have offered the employees an additional day.

Presently the employees receive five days off for sick leave and 10 paid holidays annually.

"We want more job security," Morales said. "We want the contract language to allow the employer to lease equipment to anyone he wants to, but he must use union employees."

This is a bone of conten-

Redevelopment Meeting Said To Be 'Disaster'

Wholesale dissatisfaction is being expressed today over a report which so far has cost Daly City $99,000 and taken almost a year to compile.

The report, prepared by a joint venture team known as DASA, concerns three alternatives for redevelopment of the Mission Street, and Junipero Serra Boulevard business corridors of the city.

Last week, Michael D'Amico, one of the principals, presented his findings to a combined meeting of the city's Planning Commission, City Council and 25-member Project Area Committee.

"The meeting was a disaster," City Manager David Rowe said.

Before the session was half over, about a dozen persons walked out of the Coral Room at the War Memorial Building. All voiced displeasure with D'Amico's report.

The controversial report contained the following three alternatives for redevelopment and revitalization of the business district:

- Rehabiliatation of the target areas with minimal demolition of existing structures. (This alternative would not allow for assemblage of any large parcels of land which might attract developers.)
- Allow major streets in the area to remain with few changes. Close Mission Street between Flournoy and the so-called Top of the Hill area. Route traffic over Flournoy and San Jose Avenues.
- Construction of a huge oval-shaped traffic rotary at the Top of the Hill on Mission Street with a large parcel located in the center

DUMPING THEIR OWN

Daly City-Colma residents are taking advantage of free dumping at Mussel Rock daily during current scavenger strike.

Citizens Flock to Mussel Rock Dump

An estimated 2,500 persons flocked to the Mussel Rock dump in Daly City over the weekend as the current garbage strike entered its second week.

City Manager David Rowe said the city firemen have given out 16,000 heavy duty plastic garbage bags.

The free bags are available at any fire station.

Everything from mattresses, refrigerators and sinks to bags of garbage were deposited at the dump during the hours of operation Saturday and Sunday, Rowe said.

"It looks like people are cleaning out their garages and trucking the junk to the dump," Rowe said.

band is blind in one eye and his wife is recovering from surgery.

In another case, an elderly woman who lives alone used to depend on her young son to prepare her lunch every day during his own lunch hour. Now she eats a hot lunch provided by Meals on Wheels.

Mrs. Brice said the criteria for receiving a hot lunch is physical or financial inability to cook meals themselves. Also assisted are those who simply are not motivated to cook a balanced meal three times a day.

"We know they haven't been eating properly," Mrs. Brice said.

George Boyd, a Pacifica resident, was one of the volunteer delivery men in the first weeks of the program. As of Monday, the program has a paid meal delivery person.

George hopped in his economy car at Oddstad Park senior center Friday and headed toward the Daly City nutrition site.

That's where a crew headed by Julius Castellan is preparing the meals — both for the seniors who eat at the center and those who get their meals at home.

Castellan is busily stacking the cartons for Boyd to carry to his car and head back to Pacifica.

There's a huge kettle of vegetable soup on the stove in the kitchen and the cooks are perspiring in their starched white aprons.

"These are a great bunch of people," said Castellan. The meals, he said, are the tops.

Boyd — a senior citizen himself — gets back on the freeway, anxious to deliver the meals before they are cold. The Pacifica delivery service will have a heater soon, so seniors at the end of the route won't have to reheat their meal.

His first stop is a woman who lives alone in a Pacifica Manor home. She smiles warmly as she receives her meal. Her wheelchair rests nearby and a cane leans across her lap.

The second stop is the home of a mother and daughter — 99-year-old Lulu Wilson and her daughter, Irene Tjader.

"This has been a big help to me," says Mrs. Tjader. "I don't know what we would have done without it."

It's been a godsend, she said. For other meals, they manage to get by with soup for a few days and meals heated up in a crockpot.

"We just couldn't have managed very well without this program," she said. There's just no one else around to help her care for her mother — and she's not too well herself, she said.

Another stop on the delivery service is the trailer court home of Harry Ellis, confined to his mobile home much of the day due to health problems.

"It's delightful," Ellis said of his meal. He said he manages the rest of his meals — a can of soup, toast or maybe a sandwich.

But the hot meal, he said, keeps him in his own home — out of a nursing care facility.

Mrs. Gruman said the severity of the need depends upon the area. In East Palo Alto, she said, there are many, many hungry people.

"They would die if they didn't have this food," she said. "By giving them one meal a day, it will hopefully keep them out of a rest home and independent."

"A lot of times when seniors live alone, the incentive to eat is gone," she said.

Mrs. Gruman said that the federal laws regulating Meals on Wheels throughout the country require the meal to constitute one-third of the recommended daily nutritional allowance.

But, for many of the seniors who participate — both on deliveries and at the centers — the meal is the only one of their day.

"So, I usually give them over the nutritional amount required," she said.

There may be an expansion of the program, Mrs. Gruman said. The Area Agency on Aging is studying the home delivery program and may come up with a plan to serve more than one meal a day. The report, she said, is due in September.

The recipients, she said, have pride and want to make it clear that they support the program with periodic donations.

"They are very grateful, but they want it known they are paying their amount," she said. "They want everybody to know they are not on welfare."

Mrs. Brice said educating senior citizens about the importance of nutrition would help solve many health problems.

The seniors in Pacifica will be offered a low budget cooking class in the fall. Periodically, nutritionists and public health nurses talk to seniors at the various nutrition sites.

The cooking class, she said, will have access to computers at San Francisco State University. Seniors will be able to run their daily diet through a computer and find out how their diet is affecting their life expectancy, she said.

Some may find out the food they eat — or don't eat — is killing them, she said.

"Hopefully, it will be an incentive to eat right," she said.

Strike

tion as far as scavenger company owners are concerned.

The company feels if it leases routes to individuals they then become self-employed and should have the right to join or not join a union.

(There are no plans for such lease-route agreements at present, it is understood).

"We have offered (the union) what we consider a fair and equitable package," Hupf said. "We will not allow our pockets to be picked."

Asked if the membership had voted to strike when the contract expired on Aug. 1, Morales said they did not.

"There was no final proposal from the employer, therefore nothing to vote on," Morales argues.

Earlier, the members had voted to strike, Morales contends.

"It's a case of no contract, no work," Morales said.

Hupf and company officials said Morales had been offered a written proposal before the meeting in late July.

It was Hupf's understanding, he said, that the membership should have been given the opportunity to vote on the offer from management.

Morales said Hupf was "misstating the facts."

He said there was another meeting between scavenger company president Al Sereni, a "representative of the company" and the union "without Hupf" on July 28.

At this meeting it was Morales' understanding there would be yet another meeting set for July 29 to further discuss the situation.

"I set up the meeting to be held at the Hilton Hotel and expected Mr. Sereni to revise his proposal and present them at this meeting," Morales said.

"When I came back from lunch there was a message from Sereni cancelling the meeting," Morales said. "I called Sereni and he told me he didn't want any more meetings."

The membership voted to reject the company proposals at an Aug. 23 meeting, Morales said.

And as far as he is concerned there has been no further action on the part of the company to revise its proposals.

The six partners of the Daly City Scavenger Co. have kept the company operating and the dump open free to the public during the strike, which is now entering its third week.

They are bitter over what they call "the rotten shake" Morales has given them and his alleged failure to allow the membership to vote on the new proposals.

Meanwhile, scavenger employees continue to maintain an informational type picket line around City Hall and four company locations around the city.

The city now operates the dump and has hired company officials to work equipment there.

Planner Presents Five Transit Alternatives

By LIN DAY

Five alternatives to the present Southern Pacific Railroad and bus commute system used today on the Peninsula will be presented to a key Peninsula transit body within a few days — two incorporate BART as integral factors, and one is all BART.

That's what members of the Peninsula Transit Alternatives Project Citizens Advisory Committee learned Thursday night from planning consultant Wallace Dela Barre, in a meeting in the Board of Supervisors chambers in Redwood City.

A sixth alternative — the present system with improvements — also will be presented to the Board of Control of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, Dela Barre said.

He explained that originally, when the citizens advisory group first convened, there were about half a dozen plans, which the citizen input expanded to 25 — the most recent submitted about two weeks ago.

Dela Barre then presented a complex chart in which all the factors conceived as pertinent were measured against all the alternatives and given plus or minus ratings.

Not included in this evaluation, he admitted, was the cost factor. He said a separate evaluation was being made of costs, but that the present alternatives to be submitted, condensed from the 25 possible, were "not weighted," and thus did not include cost.

The plans will be presented to the Project Committee at 9:30 a.m. August 20 at Room 101, the County Office Building, Redwood City.

Some members of the committee criticized the condensed plans for their BART relationship, others for their labels which failed to show a BART relationship, and others for the plan failure to show cost because, as some pointed out, "nobody wants BART," and cost is a factor.

The planners admitted that if BART were included in a selected plan, the area would become involved in BART cost. In previous meetings, a majority of the citizens group have repeatedly said that because of the cost of BART, they do not want it here.

Dela Barre said that of eight condensed plans, six were selected for presentation to the Board of Control.

These were labeled the "Baseline" plan, or present system; a "Bus Dependent" plan, a "Rail Dependent" plan, a "BART-Bus Transit" plan, a "BART-Light Rail" plan and a modified "Rail-Bus" plan.

The next meeting of the group, set at 7:30 p.m. August 12 at the Ampex Corporation Cafeteria, 401 Broadway, Redwood City, will be too late to insert the citizens' point of view, one member pointed out, since the plans then will already be in the hands of the Board of Control.

That meeting, however, PENTAP meeting notice said, will be called "for additional discussion on the Consultant's recommendation for Alternatives to be studied in depth and CAD's recommendation to the Project Committee."

One member, a researcher who has worked years on rapid transit plans concerning the Peninsula, said later that four of the five alternative plans to the present system are reruns of former studies.

Specifically, the researcher said, the plans coincide as follows:

The Bus-Dependent plan, according to the researcher, is an outgrowth of a study by Parsons, Brinkerhoff, Tudor and Bechtel, Wilbur Smith and Kerber Chapman.

The BART-Bus Transit plan, she said, is an outgrowth of an airport study made by the same firm in 1972.

The BART-Light Rail plan also is derived in its basics, she said, from studies by the same prestigious group that studied a the Bus-Dependent plan with several alternatives worked into it.

The Rail-Bus plan, she said, is a "watered down version of work done by Eric Moore, MTC staff consultant, designed to upgrade the Southern Pacific commute system."

of this oval (suitable for commercial development.) Realign San Pedro and Mission streets.

The second alternative also called for continuing the Bay Area Rapid Transit line along the Junipero Serra (280) freeway for several blocks before dropping underground as it traveled south toward San Francisco Airport.

The reaction of those contacted concerning the D'Amico report was one of bitter disappointment.

Most said they felt they were presented with only one practical alternative — the closing of Mission between Flournoy and the Top of the Hill.

Others, however, considered the first alternative, rehabilitation of existing structures in the target areas, sound and practical.

Rerouting of BART along the freeway would, in effect, establish a new corridor if and when rapid transit is extended southward from John Daly Blvd. This would then "free" the land now designed in the city's general plan for the BART route and currently being used by Southern Pacific Railway Co. as a spur track.

Frank Spadarella, chairman of the PAC, called the oval business concept "a monstrosity" and noted it "reminds me of the ancient chariot race track in Rome."

"In fairness (to D'Amico)," Spadaralla said, "there is a lot of good work contained in the report. I don't feel all is lost. But we must go back and correct certain aspects of this report."

There were two errors in computation in the report.

One concerned projected revenues from the area developed under Plan Two over the next 20 years. Figures indicated revenues would amount to some $91 million.

The correct figure should have been $22 million, according to Steven David, owner of Matthews' Television on Mission Street.

David called the miscalculation "a gross error."

The figures were presented by Tom Feeney, of Economic Research Associates, part of the DASA team.

The report likewise underestimated current Daly City assessed valuation figures by almost $2 million, Rowe said.

D'Amico said he "didn't get the feeling anyone was unhappy" with his report.

He said there had been a "computation error" in the economic portion of the report, however, "that's all been corrected."

Regardless of the errors, the conclusions remain the same, D'Amico said.

George Smith, president of the Mission Merchants Association and owner of the Mission Bell Motel on Mission Street, said "it's too soon to tell" what the impact of the report will have on planning in the area.

Smith said he "wasn't too happy" with the DASA alternatives, but feels "we can still salvage part of it."

D'Amico and Rowe were expected to meet today on whether to grant the consultant team an extension to complete the report.

The contract still has two months to go and D'Amico said he has been trying to keep to the schedule.

Supervisors Want Say in Coastal Legislation

By LIN DAY

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors Thursday took no action after discussing its concerns with the possible continuation of the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

Only three of the five-man Board of Supervisors were present to vote Thursday afternoon. Supervisor James Fitzgerald had left at noon for an appointment, and Supervisor Jean Fassler disqualified herself since, she pointed out, she owns property in the affected zone.

Each of the remaining supervisors offered his own resolution concerning the supervisors' position, but none would second the other's in discussing four bills before the state legislature.

Supervisor Ed Bacciocco, whose resolution was a compromise, urging the legislature merely to incorporate San Mateo County concerns in any bill it should pass, indicated later he might bring the matter before the board.

However, the matter may be further complicated by the fact that Supervisor John Ward plans to leave today for a vacation.

Ward had held out for an endorsement of the Smith/Beilenson Bill (SB 1277), which the others refused.

Third man in the disagreement was Supervisors Chairman William Royer, who said he felt the supervisors should take no position at all.

Half Moon Bay City Manager Fred Mortensen, who appeared before the board to suggest definition of urban exclusion areas and to press for exclusion of Half Moon Bay from the authority, said he was satisfied with the outcome in Redwood City Thursday.

Mortensen had pointed out that of the total 4,000 acres of Half Moon Bay, 400 have been set aside for community open space, and 600 more — a nearly 300-yard strip six miles long facing the beaches — have been zoned as permanent open space for regional benefit.

The board did agree on its concerns. They were defined as follows in a collective memorandum relating to the Smith Bill (SB 1277) and amendments contained in its Preprint SB 19.

• That the bill explicitly states that the voting requirements for affirmative action by the state or regional commissions and that a majority vote of the current active members constitutes action by the commission and that further commission vacancies shall not affect the voting procedures. (The majority vote of the remaining filled memberships constitutes legal action.)

• That concrete assurances be provided that local government will indeed be subvented for the additional costs of administering planning programs resulting from the legislation.

• That the bill explicitly states the criteria which the state will utilize in order to determine if the proposed local coastal planning programs are adequate. (According to the bill, this will be accomplished at a later date.)

• That the language of Section 30254 regarding the design configuration of Highway 1 be modified to provide for needed road improvements where safety and other related factors warrant. (Existing language discussing a two-lane highway would preclude a passing lane on Devil's Slide.)

• That appeals to the State Coastal Commission from local planninng decisions be limited to those where local government has rendered a decision of approval prior to local program certification. (If local government denies a development application that the denial should not be appealable to the State Coastal Commission.)

• That Section 30160 (the Smith Bill) be changed to modify the definitions of "development" to omit reference to minor utility lines.

• That the permit zone be kept to no more than 1,000 yards from high water.

• That a policy should be established for the state to compensate property owners for expense and loss for resulting public benefit in sensitive coastal resource areas.

The supervisors made it clear that they consider all the bills inadequate.

Also before the legislature are the Cullen/Ayala Bill (AB 3402) and the Keene Bill (AB 3875).

The memorandum concerning the Smith bill was prepared for the supervisors by County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe, upon a request from the board Aug. 3.

There was considerable discussion by the supervisors of the matter of voting majorities, and disagreement by several on the counting of an absent as a "No" vote.

The Smith bill has been undergoing hearings before the Assembly Committee on Resources, Land Use and Energy, with hearings set this week in Los Angeles.

The Keene bill, currently before the Senate Committee on Natural Resources and Wild Life, is scheduled for hearing and vote Aug. 10.

The Cullen/Ayala Bill also is before that same Senate committee on the same schedule as the Keene Bill.

All three bills must clear the policy committees they are in by Aug. 10, the fiscal committees in the respective houses by Aug. 20 and the legislature by Aug. 21, in order to become law on Jan. 1, 1977, under normal procedures.

Fire Proves Stubborn

A smoky, stubborn fire in a pile of salvaged timber kept South San Francisco firemen on the job at Oyster Point for some five hours Thursday.

The fire broke out in a large pile of scrapped pier pilings from which workmen of the Healy Tibbets Co. were attempting to salvage metal fittings by using cutting torches.

The "big bonfire," as one fireman described it, broke out about 3:30 p.m. and was finally extinguished at 10 p.m.

Crash Kills SSF Man

Emergency room physicians at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City worked in vain for an hour Friday afternoon to save the life of Manuel Rodriguez, 54, of 401 Dolores Ave., South San Francisco, after his car smashed into a steel guard rail on Interstate 280 at Alemany Boulevard, just north of the San Francisco County line.

According to Coroner's Investigator James Wade, Rodriguez apparently suffered head injuries when he was thrown against the windshield by the impact. Rodriguez apparently lost control of the vehicle.

Two Rec Plays Set in Daly City

The Daly City Recreation, Parks and Maintenance Department has added a new concept to their Summer Music Theatre Program.

Following auditions which were held in early June, the Daly City Summer Repertory Company was born. This season the popular musical "Anything Goes" with music by Cole Porter and an original version of the fantasy "Wizard of Oz" will be produced under the direction of Ron Wells, drama specialist.

All performances will be held at the Serramonte High School-Little Theatre, 699 Serramonte Blvd. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The "Wizard of Oz" opens the company's season Aug. 13 with additional performances scheduled for Aug. 19, 21 and 27.

"Anything Goes," featuring the music of Cole Porter, will be performed Aug. 14, 20, 26 and 28.

Tickets for each performance may be reserved by phoning 992-5356 between the hours of 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tickets will also be available at the door on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Pet Care Talk Set

Today at 2 p.m. at the Sanchez Library, there will be a program presented by docents from the Coyote Point Junior Museum.

They will be bringing along a sampling of the small animals that are quartered there so that children can learn how to handle them correctly and learn more about them.

Do you have any questions about pet care and what to do about the turtle or lizard or hamster (or maybe even snake) that you got for your last birthday?

You can get the answers from the people from Coyote Point. All ages are invited.

Scouts Enjoying Day Camp Events

Scout's own services are being held daily at the Daly City Girl Scout Association Day Camp this week at Junipero Serra Park in San Bruno.

Camp Director Carole Ann Scott and her staff of adults and older girls have planned daily workshops for girls which will include a Scout's Own ceremony with each daily colors.

Other workshops at the camp which includes girls from Brownie to Senior ages include trail following, songs and games, fire buildings, knife safety, art, first aide and compass games.

A steamed coffee can cake is only one of the many culinary delights as the girls explore colonial cooking on a camp theme of Thirteen Colonies.

Arts and crafts projects include weaving, bark gardens, string art, clay, plaster plaques, and key chains, and others.

This week is the deadline for the September issue of the Daly City Girl Scout Association "Scoutlook". All copy should be turned in to Lynn Hughes, 645 Larchmont, Colma, as soon as possible.

Extortionists Sentenced

Two young extortionists have been sentenced to indefinite terms at the Glenwood Camp for Boys in La Honda for their roles in a shakedown racket at Daly City high schools.

The pair, aged 15 and 16 years old, operated separately. Both had been extorting money from students at high schools by threatening the victims with bodily harm unless they paid up.

Similar tactics have been employed by roving youth gangs at local high schools in recent months.

Beginners' Square Dance Class Set

A Beginners Square Dance Class, sponsored by the South San Francisco Parks and Recreation Department, will start Sept. 14, at Hillside School, 1400 Hillside Blvd. from 8 to 10:30 p.m.

This class for adult couples will be open for signup until Sept. 28 only.

Kids' Film Fest Unreels Fridays

The Pacifica Library located on Palmetto and Hilton Way will hold an August Film Festival for children every Friday at 3:30 p.m.

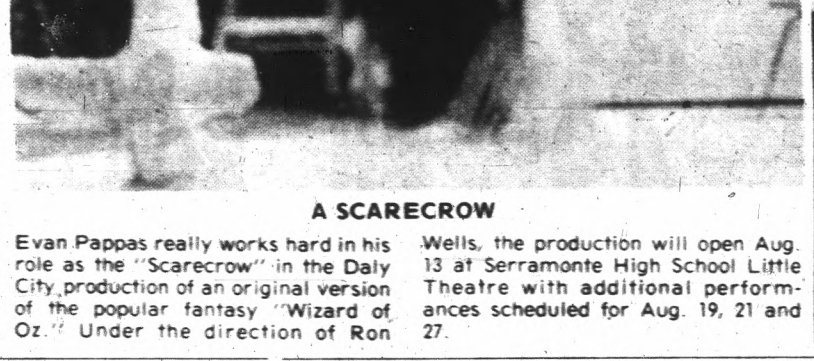
All children are invited, but pre-schoolers should be accompanied by an older brother or sister or an adult.

The films to be seen Aug. 13 are "Snowman," an animated story of a heroic snaowman, and "Doughnuts," a live action film based on Robert McCloskey's Homer Price.

"Ghost and Ghoulies," a 20-minute live-action film about seven children who spend a night in a haunted house, and "The Ugly Duckling," Hans Christian Anderson's classic tale of the unwanted duckling, will be seen on Aug. 13.

On Aug. 20 the "Fur Coat Club," a live action mystery, and "The Little Engine that Could," a cartoon version of the determined little engine, will be shown.

The films for Aug. 27 will be "I'm No Fool With a Bicycle," a Disney cartoon of history of bicycles, and "Beaver Valley," a Disney nature film.



A SCARECROW

Evan Pappas really works hard in his role as the "Scarecrow" in the Daly City production of an original version of the popular fantasy "Wizard of Oz." Under the direction of Ron Wells, the production will open Aug. 13 at Serramonte High School Little Theatre with additional performances scheduled for Aug. 19, 21 and 27.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The Daly City Scavenger Company is confronted with a strike by Local 350, Sanitary Truck Drivers and Helpers Union, which in the judgment of the Company is irresponsible.

This is the Company's offer to the Union (in addition to existing fringe benefits).

1. Wage increases for drivers as follows:

August 1, 1976—$12,828 to $14,100 annually
August 1, 1977—$14,100 to $15,240 annually
August 1, 1978—$15,240 to $16,380 annually

2. Pension fund increases from $34.60 to $43.80 per month per man (25% increase) and an agreement to pay 40% more commencing January 1979 because of vesting requirements of the law ($60.55 per month).

3. Holiday pay increased to 2½ times basic pay.

The Scavenger Company's proposal was made in the face of many Union demands, which the Company considers irresponsible, one of which was a $3.00 per hour increase which would have increased wages in the space of two years from $12,828 annually to $31,553 (exclusive of fringe benefits).

The Union, moreover has acted in a manner which the Company considers irresponsible, by not permitting its members to vote on the final proposal of the Scavenger Company which was made in writing on July 23, 1976. The Teamster's Constitution requires such a vote and requires 2/3 majority before a strike can be called.

The Daly City Scavenger Company regrets the present state of affairs. It is confronted with demands, which in the judgment of the Company are irresponsible. The Company feels it must resist these demands in the public interest.

Public Safety Plan Escapes Extinction

The killing blow to South San Francisco's plans for a $12 million Public Safety Facility has been averted temporarily.

The City Council met in executive (closed-door) session Wednesday night for some 20 minutes before returning to announce that a vote to cancel the financing structure of the police and fire complex could not be taken then.

City Atty. John Noonan said a "legal problem" had arisen and until it is resolved, the council couldn't take action. Apparently, the "legal problem" is a move by Ronald Acosta's attorney, Peter Coleman.

Acosta, who has been suing the city over the method of financing the facility, said his attorney is seeking city payment of his court fees.

Acosta and the city are battling in Appellate Court to determine if the nonprofit corporation finance method is legal.

A lower court ruled that it was legal.

However, when the City Council in June took a preliminary vote to eliminate the nonprofit corporation established to finance the controversial facility, it essentially meant the end of the lawsuit.

The council was to approve formal resolutions Wednesday night repealing two 1975 ordinances providing for the police and fire facility.

Noonan said he could not discuss the reason for the delay since it involved litigation.

However, Acosta said the city's action stops his lawsuit short.

As a result, he is unable to recover from the courts legal expenses from his long battle with the city.

Acosta's attorney said he has submitted a letter to Reese Bader, the attorney hired by the city to handle the lawsuit on its behalf.

Bader is on vacation and has not responded, Coleman said.

"It's our belief that if we were successful in litigation we would have been entitled to them (legal expenses)," Coleman said.

Since the city is preventing the lawsuit from reaching a conclusion, he is asking for legal fees now.

"I feel Mr. Acosta is entitled to attorney fees," he said. In effect, Coleman added, Acosta actually has saved the city from building a $12 million facility by challenging the financing method.

Acosta said his legal action was funded partly by donations in the beginning.

SSF Council Delays Center Decision

By JANET PARKER

The fate of a shopping center proposal which drew more than 150 South San Franciscans to a City Council meeting Thursday night will not be determined until Sept. 8.

For nearly three years, residents of the city's Southwood area have been vigorously fighting plans by Sutter Hill, Ltd. of Palo Alto to build a shopping center with a Lucky's Supermarket and Payless drugstore at the corner of Westborough Boulevard and El Camino Real.

Thursday night was to have been the showdown between the developers, who are adamant the site is a good one, and residents, who think the site is the worst possible.

But after listening to more than three hours of reports, speeches and general comments, the City Council decided to carefully weigh the information and return with a verdict in a month.

Residents had appealed for a City Council hearing after the Planning Commission approved the shopping center 6-1 in May.

Although it was not as turbulent as the Planning Commission hearing, the council's session got off to a boisterous start.

One of the community's reasons for protest, they have said, is the financial effect of the center on existing businesses.

John Thompson, Sutter Hill's economist, said considering the loss from other businesses because of Sutter Hill, the city will still gain $28,000 in sales tax from Sutter Hill stores.

Architect Bob Bernstein said the developers have made many changes in the shopping center plan to make it more attractive to nearby residents.

Bernstein said the rear of the building, which faces Club View Apartments, is reduced in height because the buildings now will be dug into the hillside.

He said 15 per cent of the property will be landscaped, "certainly above the average of most shopping centers."

Residents, however, weren't satisfied. A group, called Southwood Concerned Residents, paraded 12 speakers before the council to complain that the center will be environmentally and economically unsafe.

Staunch opponent Helen Hoopes said she envisions residents choking from exhaust fumes when the development is built.

"It will be grossly unfair if the developer and landowner can dictate what they want over the desires of the community," she said.

"No matter how many restrictions and conditions there are . . . the supermarket spells disaster for all except the big money interests," Mrs. Hoopes said.

Margaret Skinner said she objects for four reasons — the additional traffic, pollution, proximity to a church and funeral parlor and simply that "We don't need it."

"I firmly believe people have the right to decide what they want in their community," she said.

Downtown Merchants Association president Joe Rousso said environmental and economic impact reports, as the ones for Sutter Hill, can be made to say anything the developer wants them to.

"The developer can go somewhere else and build. You can't expect the same of an entire community," he said.

Pharmacist Cliff Farber drew applause from his supporters as he attempted to refute Thompson's economic report.

Farber claimed the report contains "false, misleading and inaccurate figures."

He presented figures saying that the proposed center's trade area does not have the population Thompson contends it does.

The planning commissioner who cast the sole vote against the development — Roberta Teglia — questioned portions of the project's EIR.

Youth Hurt In Fire Rescue Try

A San Francisco youth was seriously injured when he tried to rescue a man he thought had been overcome by smoke inside a burning San Bruno garage Thursday night.

Terry Smerdel, 17, of 546 Mangles St., San Francisco, was walking by the home of Richard Watkins at 320 Acacia Ave. at about 7:45 p.m. when he saw dense smoke pouring from the garage.

Smerdel, running to a side window of the garage, saw what appeared to be a victim of the fire lying on the floor.

He smashed out the window with his hands and entered the burning structure, fire officials report.

Lovanne Heath

Things do slow down considerably during the summer months, but Mrs. Rudy Enberg, South San Francisco's energetic leader of the Bay Area chapter of Friends Outside, reports that families in need exist all the time and need help on a year round basis. That fact has led to a continuation of all the regular programs offered by the group, as well as the introduction of some new undertakings — designed to alleviate problems that are vagnified by the holidays.

Many of the children of families served by Friends Outside are a part of the free breakfast and lunch programs during the school year and now that they are on vacation are experiencing real hunger. Toni Gillard of the Friends Outside youth program has been concerned especially with this problem, and Mrs. Enberg reports that he has obtained aid from various sources, including the Council of Churches, and now Friends Outside is able to serve breakfast, lunch and a mid-day snack to the children of member families.

Also available at Friends Outside's office is a new booklet that lists emergency services available to persons facing various types of crisis. To get a copy, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Friends Outside, 136 Church St., San Francisco, 94114.

Hope you are remembering NOT to throw away any interestingly shaped bottles! Mrs. Mary McCoy, of Mary's Help Hospital's volunteer office, is anxious to accept unique or colorful bottles you might donate for sale at the Mary's Help Hospital Guild Christmas Boutique.

For the first time, the holiday bazaar will feature a table devoted entirely to bottles. The new table will join the ever popular counters which display such traditional items as knitted, crocheted and embroidered articles, toys, bric-a-brac, plants and holiday decorations. Proceeds from the sale are used to help the hospital administration purchase additional equipment and materials.

A reminder from Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan of the Fifty Plus Club of Pacifica. If you haven't made final payment on your reservations for the S.S. Mariposa, Hawaii-bound on Oct. 12, the deadline is drawing near!

Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg, who is handling the reservations, notes that all balances must be paid prior to Aug. 23.

Mrs. Emily Sumrall, president of the Balboa Alumni Association, is anxious to hear from anyone who would like to help with a luncheon honoring retired teachers who have served on the faculty at Balboa High School in San Francisco.

Scot G. Heath was the guest of honor at three parties celebrating his return from a 13-month tour of duty in Korea. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morford hosted a dinner gathering in their Franciscan Park home Thursday evening, Jeff Frienz gave a party in his Bay View district apartment for members of their Lowell High School graduating class on Friday evening and Heath was entertained at a family dinner party in the home of his aunt, Ms. Gayle Terry, in San Jose Saturday.

Heath was visiting locally while in transit to his new duty station at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Openings for two kindergarten students are available in the new kindergarten class to be offered at Lakeside Presbyterian Church in San Francisco. The kindergarten class is an extension of the 15-year-old nursery school program, which operates as a part of the church's Christian Education Program under the direction of Westlake's Mrs. Gertrude Madrosen.

Birth Control Sessions Set

The Mary's Help Hospital Natural Family Planning Center will hold its fourth series of classes in the Billings Ovulation Method of family planning beginning Aug. 26 at 7:30 p.m.

Couples interested in learning the method are invited to attend the biweekly course, which will continue through Sept. 23. The next series of classes will begin Oct. 3.

The classes, which are held in the hospital's Conference Dining Room, are free to the public.

The Ovulation Method of family planning, developed by the husband-wife team of Australian physicians, John J. and Evelyn Billings, relies upon the observation of cervical mucus to determine fertility.

Unlike the rhythm and/or temperature methods of family planning, the Billings Method gives advance warning of ovulation, which insures the detection of fertile and infertile periods.

Natural Family Planning Centers have been established in several major metropolitan areas of the United States and foreign countries.

According to Sister Arthur Gordon, clinic coordinator at Mary's Help Hospital, follow-up meetings on the Ovulation Method will be held at the Natural Family planning Center on a weekly basis.

For more information on the classes, call Mary's Help Hospital at 992-4000, ext. 434.

More Eligible For Food Stamps

People living in government subsidized housing who applied for food stamps in the past nine months and were turned down may be eligible after all, Robert D. Rippeto, Director, Social Service Division, San Mateo County Department of Public Health and Welfare, said last week.

A recent court decision (Anderson vs. Butz) held that housing benefits have been counted incorrectly in determining food stamp benefits and eligibility.

The court ruled that food stamp benefits must be refigured for all persons who receive government aid for house payments or rent and that correct food stamp benefits must be provided to those who received less than they should have.

People living in subsidized housing who applied for food stamps on or after Oct. 8, 1975, and were turned down should contact the nearest San Mateo County welfare office.

Those who used food stamps during the past nine months but are not using them now, should also contact their welfare office.

Paramedic Contract Signing Due Tuesday

By BOB HEMINGWAY

Formal approval by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors of an agreement with the Southern California firm of Medevac, Inc., to provide emergency paramedic and ambulance service in the county beginning Dec. 1 was expected at the board's Tuesday meeting.

Dave Thoene, the county's emergency medical services coordinator, said late Thursday that agreement had been reached with Medevac officials concerning the placing of a cost ceiling on the paramedic service.

In its Thursday morning meeting, the board gave its conditional approval to the agreement with Medevac, but directed County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett to return Tuesday with an "acceptable agreement" relative to cost ceilings.

Thoene said after he and Pickett met with Medevac officials that there had been agreement on "some language."

"I don't see any problem," Thoene stated. "We'll give it to the board Tuesday morning."

The board gave only conditional approval to the agreement Thursday after Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson said the lack of a cost ceiling in the agreement could conceivably cost the county "many thousdands of dollars' if the number of ambulance runs exceeded by 25 per cent the number estimated by Health and Welfare officials, or in the event of a catastrophe requiring a long period of ambulance runs.

Still strongly supporting his recommendation to award the contract to Medevac, Pickett told the board, "There has been no improvement in the business practices or service delivery (by the county's existing ambulance companies) in the past two years. I'm sorry to have to say that."

Thoene said there is a "close link" between Medevac and the public safety agencies in the Southern California cities where the firm provides paramedic ambulance service. On the other hand, relationships between ambulance companies and public safety agencies in this county are described as "poor".

Supervisor John M. Ward said there had been no support from the county's public safety agencies to retain the ambulance companies or to award one of them the paramedic contract.

"Where is that support, the letters, the phone calls?" Ward asked. "We have to consider that in the overall picture."

Thoene noted that if the paramedic-ambulance service is to be successful there must be an "excellent relationship" with fire departments, which usually are first at the scene of an emergency.

Pickett said the first 10 months of the contract will cost the county $505,531, some $9,000 more than the original estimate of last week. The extra amount is to increase the county's share of the payment of the premium to increase the liability insurance of the contract from $1 million to $5 million.

The full second-year cost to the county is estimated at $658,634, with Medevac to provide paramedic-ambulance service in five zones established under the Emergency Medical Services Plan.

Thoene reported that it will be Oct. 1, 1977, before the new service is fully operational because of the necessity to complete a new telementary communications system.

Thoene refuted a contention by spokesmen for Mercy-Peninsula Ambulance Co. last week that the local firm could provide the county paramedic-ambulance service over a period of eight years (the originally four-year contract, with a four-year renewal) at a cost of $1 million less than Medevac.

Displaying a list of compiliations and rate comparisons, Thoene said it is conceivable that Medevac can provide the service at a saving of $1 million over eight years, while the Mercy service could cost an additional $35,000 for the same period.

One of the main factors in his calculation was the report by Pickett that if Medevac's bill collection system proves as effective in San Mateo County as it has been in Los Angeles County there could be substantial savings.

In his report, Pickett noted that estimates assume Medevac will refer 30.3 per cent of its accounts to the county as uncollectable and therefore reimbursable at contract rates.

However, he reported, in Los Angeles County, the number of such referrals by Medevac is only 20.9 per cent.

Pickett said he didn't want to present the lower figure in the agreement proposal because of the tight county budget situation.

"If it works out lower, we're that much ahead," he stated.

Pickett estimated the average charge per patient for paramedic-ambulance service will amount to $143.50 in four zones, and $154 in Zone 5, which comprises the Coastside area south of Pacifica.

Pickett said it is estimated that Medevac will handle 36.5 per cent of the county's ambulance business with its emergency service.

Paramedic ambulances will be dispatched only by the county communications center and will not even list a telephone number.

Pickett said the impact on existing ambulance companees will vary and will depend on the extent to which existing companies are able to reduce overhead costs. The requirement for 24-hour staffing, for example, will be "reduced significantly" for existing companies.

Also, he stated, some companies will be able to develop non-transportation related specialties. He noted that some companies hold distributorships for certain lines of medical supplies.

The health and welfare director noted, too, that some staff members of one company have been in contact with Medevac relative to receiving training and employment as paramedics.

Membership of Selection Unit Is Determined

The membership of a committee that will assist in the selection of a new superintendent was designated by the South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees this week.

The board has been setting procedures for the selection of a replacement for Dr. Paul Nielsen, superintendent of the 22-school district for 14 years.

Nielsen resigned effective Aug. 31 to teach in Germany through the University of Southern California.

The staff-community committee, trustees decided Tuesday night, will include an administrator, a teacher, a classified employe and one representative each from the committees on affirmative action, secondary education, student health, 3.3 multicultural program, finance and vocational education.

Also to be appointed are three Parent Teacher Association members — one each from the elementary, secondary and high school levels — and four community representatives at large, and one student.

The committee's task will be to evaluate all applications after a committee of three professional persons makes its recommendations.

The professional committee is headed by Frankyn White, former Menlo Park School District superintendent.

Other members are San Bruno Park School District Supt. William Jennings and Jefferson Union High School Associate Supt. Harold Tonini.

White, who is receiving the applications, said 25 persons have already formally submitted resumes for the vacancy.

The staff-community committee will not meet until Sept. 16.

The composition of that committee was originally recommended by Board President Tom Henkle.

In previous public meetings, members of the community had voiced concern that the committee should represent all segments of the SSFUSD.

They also were concerened that the committee have a significant role in the superintendent selection.

The board has assured that the committee's recommendation to the board, probably those they see as the best three candidates, will be an important part of the selection process.

Other board members suggested the addition of a student and community representatives-at-large to the committee.

The student will be selected after school starts in September, by the Student Advisory Committee, it was decided.

"With 17 persons, I would hope that most viewpoints would be represented," Henkle said.

The board also got its first glimpse at a brochure to be mailed to school districts, colleges and universities throughout the country advertising the superintendent vacany.

The brochure was developed after community meetings at which parents and other taxpayers suggested the qualities and abilities the new superintendent should have.

The brochure states that applicants should possess a doctorate (although that is not mandatory); a California Standard Administrative Credential or qualifications to obtain one; demonstrated competency as a superintendent, assistant superintendent or equivalent position; a broad educational background including classroom teaching, principalship and supervisory positions; experience with a variety of cultural groups; and an ability to evaluate programs and instruction.

Tarshes: $2 Million Whittling Money Already Whittled Away

San Mateo County Manager M.D. Tarshes was asked by the Board of Supervisors this week to report on an assertion by the Governmental Research Council that up to $2 million more could be whittled from the 1976-77 county budget through reduction of one-half of the 365 funded, but unfilled, county employe positions.

Howard Oliphant, a director of the CRC, urged the board to take the action before it sets the county tax rate later this month.

Tarshes said the funding for the positions already had been removed from the budget before he submitted it to the board.

"We have already done it," Tarshes insisted. "We have not funded. I can't get it across (to Oliphant)."

The board wound up its hearings on the proposed budget last Friday, with the indication that it would entail a tax rate increase of 18 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to finance.

Tarshes reported Tuesday, however, that a review of fund balances and revenue changes, along with consideration of the State Board of Equalization's assessment of utilities in the county, will have "a further effect on the tax rate."

Board Chairman William H. Royer said he would like to see the temporary freeze on filling positions vacated by county employes continued to Oct. 1 as a means of effecting further budget savings.

The board, however, took no action on the proposal, letting the matter ride until it acts on adoption of the budget and setting the rax rate.

The board turned down a proposal by Supervisor John M. Ward that $12,000 in revenue sharing funds be allocated to the Volunteer Bureau of San Mateo County because it had been overlooked when the board made its revenue sharing allocations last week.

Ward said he believed the board had temporarily passed over the bureau's application and intended to return to the matter, but had overlooked doing so.

Royer and Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald expressed concern that it would be unfair to reconsider the matter.

Supervisor Jean Fassler noted that a number of other groups which did not receive revenue sharing funds have requested reconsideration.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. commented: "Everyone else ran the race for revenue funds. Now the race is over. We would be opening the whole thing again. To give money now and not reopen the process would appear to be favoritism."

The board reached a compromise by accepting a proposal by Royer that funding for the Volunteer Bureau be reinstated in the Department of Health and Welfare budget and "considered there."

The department staff was requested to return Aug. 10 with recommendations of how the bureau can be funded from the department budget.

A balance of $44,150 in revenue sharing funds was ordered transferred to the general fund by the board.

Outdoor Ed Facility Noted

County School Tax Rate Up

The San Mateo County Board of Education Wednesday night adopted a 1976-77 budget of $17,221,253 which will entail an increase of just over 2.5 cents on the property tax rate to finance.

Board Chairman J. Paul Bradley said the increase, which will establish the tax rate at 30.23 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, will finance salary increases for district employes and the state mandated increase in the number of classes for the physically handicapped.

Bradley said today, concerning the budget, that for the second straight year there was no allocation in the capital improvement fund for an outdoor education facility.

The board has been under fire from the grand jury, the County Board of Supervisors and other groups for proceeding with acquisition of a site near Loma Mar for a proposed outdoor education facility.

Bradley termed as a "cheap shot" the comment by Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald last week in which the supervisor contrasted the $4.3 million supervisors had trimmed from the proposed county budget while the Board of Education was planning to proceed with a $4.5 million outdoor education facility.

"We have never established a final figure for the construction cost," Bradley said. "The $4.5 million is a manufactured figure by someone in the county. It is not realistic. We don't know what the cost would be."

Bradley asserted that Fitzgerald's quoted comment that the outdoor education facility is "unnecessary" is the supervisor's personal opinion.

"It's a pretty cheap shot to cop out his 'agonizing' over the (county) budget," Bradley commented. "It's a little beneath the dignity of his office."

In contrast to the turnout by the public during the county budget hearings, Bradley noted that only one member of the public appeared at the Wednesday night meeting

Quilting, Weaving On Tap at Library

The Pacifica Library located on Palmetto and Hilton Way will hold a series of craft programs for children in the month of August.

They will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesdays. The programs are for school-aged children.

On Aug. 10 the program will be Cardboard Weaving. The children will make their own creations.

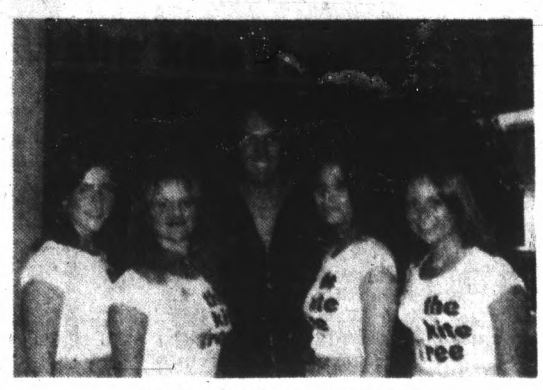
The program Aug. 17 will be making a storyquilt. The children will draw pictures from a favorite story, transfer the picture to material, and sew pieces together to make patchwork type quilt.

Aug. 24 will be a sing-a-long program. Musicians from the Yamaha Music School of San Francisco will lead children in singing of old favorites and popular songs.

For this program all ages are invited.

The last program will be held Aug. 25 at 2 p.m. It will be a puppet show featuring stories familiar to all.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON



HAPPY ENVIRONMENT

Barney's Casino and South Tahoe Nugget

For the vacation prospectors who are seeking fun and fortune, BARNEY'S CASINO and the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET in Stateline, Nevada offer the ultimate in "Entertainment the Nevada Way," plus two selective restaurant menus.....THE MOONRAKER, one of NICK GUST'S three Rockaway Beach restaurants, is sought out by those who expect something more than the ordinary. Emphasis is on continental cuisine and seafood specialties. A spectacular view of the Pacific Ocean is afforded every guest from the terraced dining room. Open Tuesday through Sunday. Reservations are suggested.....Christmas in August? Not exactly. But at THE CASTAWAY they are already taking reservations for holiday parties. If your group has set a date (especially on a weekend), suggest you give ROBERTA a call. She's the friendly gal who will help you plan a gala holiday happening.... Big news from the BAYHILL LOUNGE: It seems the bossmen of this busy San Bruno spot have been discussing the possibility of offering a "Two for one" lunch, with a starting date of Wednesday, August 11. This is a coupon event. So keep your eye on "Bright Lights" for details.....YOLANDA'S in South San Francisco is a funky place, with booths for eating, a bar for drinking, and a banquet room upstairs for any special occasion (there is also a pool table and card table upstairs). Each day a dinner special is featured. A blackboard at the entrance lists the specials for the week in advance. Enjoy this informal atmosphere. . . . First-time patrons at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden restaurant in San Francisco are always delightfully astonished at the modest prices. Prices start at $5.25 with Lehr's famous gourmet salad bar included in the price. And the dinner menu lists superb continental specialties such as Scampi and Roast Rack of Baby Lamb.....TONY and LOUIS LICATA have VINCE"S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant clicking in great style. A counter, comfortable booths and the main dining room never want for customers. Top quality food and personal service are just two good reasons. . . .

Flaming Desserts Phil Lehr's Special

Your dining enjoyment at the elegant new PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, at the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Hotel, Taylor Street entrance, doesn't end with the sizzling steaks. You can top off your feast with an irresistable dessert like Flaming Crepes Suzette or Peach Pernod.....Big Bands and Concerts at the HYATT LAKE TAHOE, Incline Village, continues to attract big crowds week-in and week-out. RAY CHARLES will be featured August 21 and 22, followed by BUDDY RICH on August 27 and 28. Check the Hyatt's advertisement in "Bright Lights" and plan a trip to Nevada.....The Medieval atmosphere at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City is an attention-getter. It is always a delight to dine here. The Gourmet Platter for Two (sliced sirloin, barbecued ribs, chicken and scampi) served Lazy Susan style is an appetite treat. Open 365 days a year.....There seems to be something about a ROMANO-served pizza that no other restaurant can duplicate. "The King," as ENRICO ROMANO is known, has been a leader in the restaurant world for many years. His Italian restaurant is firmly established as a "bit of Italy in Rockaway Beach" . . . MARGE BRANDON, popular organist now appearing at BARON'S in San Francisco, is a frequent visitor to the NEW SOUTHERN restaurant, reports DAVE LITTLE, co-owner of this well established "Southern-style" restaurant in South San Francisco. Dave, as Peninsulans well know, is a great entertainment treat when he presides at the organ during his Wednesday through Saturday nights shift in the lounge.

Olympics: Great Television Show!

Le Pacini

Following is what remains of some of my impressions of and thoughts on the Olympics, not necessarily in chronological or significant order.

Generally speaking, it was a great TV show. Now, if that really has anything to do with amateur athletics is for you to judge.

In the meantime, I'm trying to judge who was the biggest pain in the neck — Howard Cosell or Erich Segal.

For two Olympics now I have been trying to figure out why a retired college professor who has written one Mickey Mouse love story and one very undistinguished fairy tale and who is an amateur jogger should be qualified to speak with expertise on world class distance running. Forget the fact that he is to me personally obnoxious. That is not the point.

With Cosell, the fact that he is to me personally obnoxious IS the point. He is obnoxious not just because of his affected vocabulary, abrasive manner and mind-grating voice, but also because I do not understand how a man who has been connected with boxing for so long can know so little about his self acknowledged field of expertise.

One of the things that Cosell apparently doesn't know is that his expert commentator, George Foreman, doesn't know much about boxing, either, except how to throw right hands until one of them connects and puts his opponent to sleep.

And let's face it, George isn't the brightest athlete in the world, either. But there was old Howard, continually telling George how right he was.

And then there was Telly Savalas, a one-night fill-in expert. Telly's entire repertoire of expert comment consisted of, "Tell me about it, baby," and, "he's a head-hunter." And there was Howard, nodding his head in solemn agreement.

I suppose what really upset me most about Cosell, was that he was so impressed with those Cubans with the string of one-punch knockouts who fought welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard, middleweight Mike Spinks, and his brother, light heavy Leon Spinks.

Howard was especially worried about the health of Mike and Sugar Ray. Mike, said Howard, didn't have much experience and had, because of byes, walk-overs and forfeits, only one fight during the Olympics.

Sugar Ray was going against a grizzled opponent, he was tired, and he had swollen hands. "I just don't know if Sugar Ray will be able to hold off this strong, destructive, impressive Cuban," intoned Cosell unereally.

It seemed to me that any boxer with class and speed would chop up the straight-up, straight-in, stereotyped, one-punch Cubans.

Those are the kind of fighters who against a quick opponent get hit with six times while they're deciding to throw their haymaker; who don't know what to do for punching room when a skilled boxer gets inside those long powerhouse punches and starts beating around the body and then bring stinging punches up from underneath when the sluggers drop their guard to protect their privates.

That's exactly what Sugar Ray, a classic boxer, did to his opponent. Mike Spinks handled it a little differently. He mainly beat his opponent to the punch with his own quick, straight powerpunches everytime his opponent started to wind up. Leon got inside to neutralize the power of his puncher-opponent, not with boxing skill but with strength and guts. He swarmed rather than danced. The final effect was the same.

Cosell's most comical moments came in the third round, after Mike Spinks had been battering his opponent almost helpless with right hands. Foreman made the comment, quite accurately, that the Cuban was so spent that his punching power was no longer a threat. Cosell agreed.

But within the next few seconds, the Cuban launched a desperation attack and hit Spinks with a few fairly good but relatively powerless punches.

Now Cosell was off the band wagon. "Spinks must be careful. This Cuban is capable of taking him out with one punch." No sooner did Howard get that out, than the Cuban had been dumped hard to the canvas by another right. He was finished. And as far as I was concerned, so was Howard.

As for the American boxing team, I thought they were the class of the Olympics, not only in their attitude and demeanor, but in their coaching, as well. I've never seen a group of young fighters so well skilled in fundamentals, or so able to follow instructions. They were told how they could beat the Eastern European style, and they did it, textbook style.

I WISH I COULD SAY the same thing for the attitude and demeanor of our women swimmers, who in this case deserve to be called girl swimmers. Even though she was essentially accurate in what she said about the lack of "femininity" and robot-like training of the East German woman, Shirley Babashoff shouldn't have said it because it sounded like sour grapes, because she made a fool of herself, and because it was the pot calling the kettle black.

At 5-10, 160 pounds, the shoulders of a linebacker and with a vertual lifetime devoted to nothing but swimming, Babashoff would have come off much better picking on that 7 foot lady Russian basketball player, who in reality, I understand, was one of the missing buildings in the Olympic Village.

Had a beauty contest been held between the American swim team and the East German swim team and the time-honored 10 point scale been used, I daresay that the German ladies would have scored something like a 3 to 2 triumph. Oh, woman's libbers, where were you when we needed you?

There were other American flakes, to be sure. Mac Wilkins, the discus thrower, has my admiration when he talked of less than helpful Olympic officials and how he had won for himself, but he lost it when he told a television interviewer that he couldn't see going back to teaching, now, because — and we paraphrase — throwing the discus seems to him so much more relevant.

What kind of twisted mentality is involved when the throwing of a heavy frisbee for a record which won't last is considered more satisfying than the permanent shaping of young minds? As for Dwight Stones, I thought he was refreshing, and a lot more people would have, too, had he won.

Nadia Comaneci was like one of those cute little wind-up toys you see pitchmen selling on the streets. Everytime she did a flip I expected to hear that shrill, pulsating whistle they use to attract attention.

And then there was Jerry Ford, America's number one politician, sticking his nose in Olympic business to decry the exploitation of the Olympics for political purposes. I wonder if he understood the irony in that.

AS FOR BLOOD-DOPING, it's been said that it doesn't help all athletes, and could hurt some. I can attest to that. I had it done before one of the San Mateo Times-Palo Alto Times softball games, and my body rejected my own blood. And Vassily Alexeev made me feel a lot better about my pot belly.

Many people were upset over all the TV commercials. My only complaint is that the guy who did the pole vaulting for the commercial should have been invited to the Games.

I don't think that the United States government has to subsidize our athletes to be able to compete with the Eastern European countries — merely revise its selection procedure to ensure that world record holders won't be left at home because of freak circumstances. As it stands now, the rest of the world sends athletes who have excelled over a period of four years, while America sends those who have excelled for one day.

America should perhaps also send its Olympic athletes through a public relations course, that is if we continue to expect spoiled, pampered kids — and that's what world class athletes are — to walk into a pressure situation like the Olympics and as a body act maturely.

There are consolations for the next Olympiad. There will be no strikes, no financial problems, no security problems. And no defections.

News of Daly City Recreation

Playgrounds Get Ready for Final Game Day

Leisure Revolution, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, is in full swing at each of the eighteen playgrounds and parks throughout Daly City.

The city-wide end-of-the-summer event will be held at Westlake Park on Aug. 19 and all playgrounds will close at noon Aug. 20.

Football and basketball are popular at George Washington. Learning basic plays are part of each day's activities.

The "regulars" include: Bigman Darryl Kennedy, Bigman Colin Waters, Running Back Perry Bradstreet and Eric Barain.

The whiffle ball winners this week at Northridge Park were Sal Navarro and Billy Moyle. They defeated the team of Phil Franeo and Rober Zupata. Carrom winners were George Mora and Ernie Hoffman.

The group went to Fremont Central Park where Kathy Moyle, Patty and Mari Pender went after and successfully dunked Ray Moyle. Billy Moyle, Roger and Robert Zupata and Ernie Hoffman all played water football.

Under the sun for once, the young people had three barbeques last week. Big eaters were Billy Moyle, Kathy Moyle, Mari and Patty Pender.

Marshmallow roasters included Melvin Sears, Martin Reece, Joey and Matt Marsella, Ernie Hoffman and Morman Navarro.

The most popular and littlest barbequer was Cristine Moyle. The big event was burying Sal Navarro in sand from neck to toes, putting fake shoes in place of his feet, a sweater, gloves, soda pop can and belt on the sand for the real look.

Softball players were Melvin Sears, Billy and Rick Moyle, Billy Wockingfuss, George Mora, Teddy Bear and Dave Stark.

Cheerleaders included Kathy Moyle, Latrice Nash, Patty Pender, Mari Pender and Brenda Boogie.

"Butterfingers of The Week" was a tie between Debbie Rodguez and Lisa Kramer.

Representing OLM in "Anything Goes" Olympic Days were Mike Eckerman, Tim Hanage, Tom Hanagan, Erin Hanagan, Gerry Manis, Diane Murray, Elaine Murray and Jim Riccomi.

The team showed stamina and good sportsmanship throughout all the games. OLM placed fourth in the "Stylers Sack Race" and first place in "Blindman's Football." Garry Manis, Tim Hanagan, Jim Riccomi, and Mike Eckerman received blue ribbons.

Members of OLM playground enjoy other events such as a weekly barbeque, each Wednesday from noon-1 p.m. A very popular game is "Steal The Bacon."

Regular participants in "Steal the Bacon" are: Lizzy Sullivan, Molly Drucker, Tim Janagan, Mike Eckerman, Anne-Marie Henry, Cathy Henry, Kevin Henry and Theresa Byrne. The losing team must run around the playground one time.

One of the highlights of "Gold Rush Week" was the playground carrom championship tournament. The competition was very stiff and very close.

Placing first was John Naggy, second place was Mike Eckerman, and third place went to Gerald McFadden. Tim Hanagan was very close in the running for third place, and other contenders were: Jim Riccomi, Jerry Manis, and Christopher Spears.

The walls of the Serramonte Gym took on a new look as over a dozen young artists painted, cut out and taped on the walls their versions of animals that could be found in the jungle.

The week-long project consisted of nearly 20 animals and can be viewed at the gym.

Friday barbeques have brought out more than just hot-dogs. Polish and Italian sausages as well as hamburgers have graced the grill. Cooking starts at 12:30 p.m. every Friday.

Jon Madrieres became the second person this summer to take dual crowns for his 11 and under division in both carroms and ping-pong. Finishing second in carroms was Mike Nightingale, followed by Nick Ciolino in third, while Steven Sirriani placed second in ping-pong and Martin Galindez in third.

Ara Bedikian was the champion of carroms in the 12 and 13-year-old division followed by Cesar Caliz and Barbara Madrieras in 2nd and 3rd.

In ping-pong, it was Barbara Madrieres in first followed by Cesar Caliz in second and Ara Bedikian in third.

Tough competition saw Ron Spinetti taking first place in the 14-and-over ping-pong tournament with Bob Gradwohl placing second and Willie McNeil finishing third.

In carroms, Bob Martin secured first by downing Wayne Wynn who took second, while Steve Nelson finished in third place.

Among those that also played in the various age divisions were Doug Dennis, Dave Verber, Robert Caliz, Debbie Cuadra, Susan Nelson, Tish Ciolino, John Kelly and Carlos Galindez.

Special events to be looking for at Serramonte include the Annual Hat Day Contest, the Annual Dog Show and the "Summer of '76" photo slide show. Details for each of these events are available at the gym.

The "Skyline Niners" of Skyline School are in the winning column these days. The "Niners," who are the high school softball team in the recreation league, are 3-1 in league play.

Some of our players are Billy Glasspole, Edgar, Eddie, Charles Penance, Tim Brown and Martin Wilson. The "Niners" hoping to win the rest, capturing the league title.

TOP TOSSERS

Heather Hart gets set for a winning toss in the Daly City Jr. Frisbee Contest held at Westmoor Park last week. Winners included Heather Hart and Dave Escalante in the 12 and over division. Ricky Ciartanti and Carol Price topped competition in the 11 and under category.

Swim Meet Slated

The First Annual Daly City Swim Meet, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department Swim Team, will be held Aug. 14 from 9 a.m.-noon at the Westmoor Pool.

Categories of entry will include Freestyle, Butterfly, Backstroke, Breaststroke and Individual Medley for all ages — youth and adults. The last event of the day will be open to any combination of parent and child a relay of 100 yards free style (50 yards each).

Entry blanks may be obtained at the Recreation Office, the Westmoor Pool, City Hall or any branch library. Only Daly City residents may enter.

The fee is 35 cents per event. Medals and ribbons will be awarded to the first three places in each event.

Meadows Meet Sets Records

A new single-day betting record for the California Fair Circuit, including the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona was set Saturday at Bay Meadows, as all other wagering marks tumbled.

A total of $1,928,535 was wagered on the 12-race getaway day program of the San Mateo County Fair, eclipsing the former fair record of $1,810,001 set last year at Pomona. Closing day last year at the previous high San Mateo meeting saw a total of $1,732,310 sent through the mutuel machines.

For the 12 days, the mutuel handle totalled $13,793,334 for a daily average of $1,149,445. Last year saw $12,842,043 bet for an average of $1,070,170.

There will be no racing at Bay Meadows until Tuesday, September 7.

Free Bowling for Children Scheduled

The Daly City Recreation Division has, through the cooperation of Swanson's Westlake Bowl, the opportunity to offer local children between the ages of 8 and 12 years the chance to learn bowling at no cost.

Two one-week programs, consisting of five lessons and practice sessions will be offered. Each program is limited to 100 children.

All registration must be taken in advance. The sessions will be at the Westlake Bowl beginning Aug. 23 and ending Aug. 27.

Vitamins, Protein, Iron for Family

Cooking Liver is Simple

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

If you're looking for a recipe that will give your family, the protein, vitamins and most importantly the iron they need then soy sauce beef liver is what you're after.

Liver has so much to offer in our diets that it almost seems impossible that it's inexpensive too. Liver is a bargain for any homemaker because it's so easy to prepare. No fat to trim, no bones to remove — it's a versatile ingredient that can be prepared in many interesting and different ways.

Cooking liver is simple too, because liver does not require hours of braising or long cooking. It is normally quickly pan fried or sauteed.

Beef Liver Strips is a Chinese recipe that offers one new slant to cooking with liver. The Chinese through their fine art of cookery have a way of making anything into a delicacy to be savored with every bite.

In this recipe the preparation is simple and the result is delicious. Slices of liver are marinated in a mixture of soy sauce, sherry, seafood cocktail sauce, sugar and oil for a couple hours. The liver is drained and the marinade reserved to make a delicious sauce afterwards.

Accompanied with rice this recipe becomes a nutritionally balanced meal you'll be proud to serve your family knowing that it is rich in beef protein and iron.

For a vegetable just about anything goes perfectly with this dish. Stir fry some bean sprouts and sugar peas or perhaps you might want to serve steamed Chinese cabbage.

BEEF LIVER STRIPS ORIENTAL

- ½ pound beef liver
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 3 Tablespoons seafood cocktail sauce
- 2 Tablespoons dry sherry
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- Vegetable oil
- 1 green onion
- 2 thin slices unpared ginger root
- Hot cooked rice

Cut liver into julienne strips, about 2x1/2x4-inches. Combine with the one teaspoon soy sauce, three tablespoons cocktail sauce, two tablespoons dry sherry, one-half teaspoon sugar and one tablespoon oil, marinate two hours in refrigerator.

Cut onion lengthwise into thin shreds. Cut crosswise into 2-inch lengths. Heat two tablespoons oil in large skiller or wok. Add green onion and ginger and saute over medium heat 2 minutes. Lift liver from marinade with slotted spoon, reserving marinade. Gently saute liver over medium high heat for two minutes. Add the marinade. Simmer, stirring, one minute.

Serve on rice. Garnish top with additional green onion if desired.

Makes two servings.

Turtle Rock Trip Planned

Junior Teens are invited to spend a day in the East Bay Sun at Turtle Rock Ranch on Aug. 14.

The cost is $3 for teen club members and $3.25 for non-members.

Permission slips may be obtained and turned in at the following facilities: Gellert Park, Westmoor Park, Bayshore School, Westlake Park and the Recreation Office, 134 Hillside Blvd.

Bus transportation will be available from the above facilities at approximately 10 a.m. Deadline for sign-ups is Aug. 13, 5 p.m.

Bob Jones Challenged on Claim Of Testifying in Capitol

By DAN COOK

Last May 10, Belmont City Councilman Robert A. Jones, running for the Eleventh Congressional District seat held by incumbent Democrat Leo Ryan, announced he was going to Washington, D.C.

Jones' office prepared and sent to Peninsula newspapers a press release announcing that Jones had been invited to testify before the Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Articles based on the Jones news release appeared in several Peninsula newspapers.

On Aug. 1, Jones' campaign newsletter, "Inside News," which is mailed to campaign contributors and supporters, noted that "the highlight of the trip was his testimony before the Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House of Representatives."

There is one trouble with all that: it never happened, as Jones conceded Friday when confronted with the results of an investigation conducted by The Times.

According to the chairman of the subcommittee, no invitation was ever tendered, no testimony was ever received, and the chairman's staff reported they have no knowledge of Jones.

Jones did, however, fly to Washington, and did meet briefly with Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., who in a June 4 letter received by The Times described the visit as follows:

"Mr. Jones stopped by my office, unannounced and without a previous appointment, and asked if I had a few minutes to discuss monetary policy.

"Since I have just recently been named chairman of the Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee, and the subject is of great interest to me, I welcomed the opportunity to discuss monetary policy with anyone. And, in fact, we discussed monetary policy for about half an hour.

"During the course of our conversation, I told Mr. Jones that our subcommittee would be holding oversight hearings, and that we would be making a public announcement of those hearings in the near future.

"Our subcommittee has not yet held the hearings in question; so, of course, no one could have testified. We have specifically scheduled several witnesses who are experts in the field of monetary policy, but Mr. Jones is not one of them.

"Mr. Jones was totally unknown to me before the day that he stopped by the office, and after checking with members of our subcommittee staff, I find that he is not known by any of them as an expert on monetary policy.

"There was no committee meeting in my office on the day Mr. Jones came by; so, of course, it would have been impossible for the committee to have asked him to give testimony on that day."

Davis Couch, staff attorney for the Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee, contacted Friday by The Times, described a telephone conversation with Jones.

Couch said. "I told Jones by telephone prior to his coming to Washington to see Rep. Neal that the subcommittee would not be accepting testimony from him while he was a political candidate." Couch said the first he had heard of Jones was when he received a telephone call from Carolyn Judd, Jones' press relations manager.

"She called to confirm that Jones would be testifying before the subcommittee on such and such a day," Couch said. "I thought the call was strange because the subcommittee wasn't meeting that day, and since he hadn't been invited to testify."

Couch said it was determined after the initial telephone call that Jones was running for Congress, and he called Jones to inform him that his unsolicited testimony would not be received.

"I told Jones that he

Parks Board Ired

San Mateo County Parks and Recreation Director John T. Brook Jr. has recommended a slowdown of the San Pedro Park development in Pacifica because the matter of sewer and drainage fees has not been resolved.

Brook reported to the Parks and Recreation Commission Thursday night that Pacifica wants $75,000 for a water meter connection at the park and $40,000 in drainage fees.

Not only would paying the fees mean that much less for park development, Brook said, but the District Attorney's Office has said the county can't legally pay the drainage fee anyway.

Commissioner Joseph J. Higgins requested that the matter be placed on the agenda for the commission's next meeting.

"If Pacifica doesn't want to waive the fees," Higgins said, "I suggest going further down the line and get someone who will work with us instead of against us — $115,000, it's ridiculous."

The commission scheduled discussion of the situation and the Pacifica Beaches project for its Sept. 2 meeting.

In other matters, the commission:

• Voted to recommend to the Board of Supervisors that $35,000 be allocated for construction of a boardwalk and benches at the Heritage Tree Grove on Alpine Road.

Brook said split rails will be used for construction of the benches, and that new lumber will be purchased to construct the boardwalk and footbridge over the bog area.

• Voted 3 to 1 to recommend deeding of a 540-by-20-ft. strip of Coyote Point Park property along Golf Course Drive to give the City of San Mateo space to provide additional parking for the Municipal Golf Course.

Higgins voted against the recommendation, commenting that there have been complaints of too much parking in the park area. "and here we come up with another one."

Commission Chairwoman Polly Sandkulla said she was not opposed to the need, but to how parking is going to be handled.

Commissioner Ernest J. Ribera abstained from voting on the matter stating he didn't feel the commission had enough information.

Brook said there was a matter of urgency because the county is ready to proceed with park improvements in the area. If the transfer were not made until after the project started it would require a change order, with added expense, Brook stated.

Although it acted to approve the land transfer, the commission decided to make a field trip to inspect the property Aug. 12 at 2:30 p.m.

Shotgun Blast Misses Newsboy

A 12-year-old Daly City newsboy escaped almost certain death by mere inches Tuesday morning when a man he was delivering a newspaper to leveled a 12-gauge shotgun at him and fired.

The pellets narrowly missed the boy by inches, as he sensed the man was going to shoot and he fell to the ground.

An early morning jogger, also in the line of fire, also dropped to the ground when he saw the man leveling the shotgun at the boy, police said.

"Apparently, the boy knew the man standing in the doorway holding the shotgun was going to fire at him and he hit the dirt," Police Lt. Tom Culley said.

The boy is no stranger to the Frankfort Street neighborhood where the incident occurred. He has been delivering papers there for the past few months, police said.

"In fact, the boy delivered the newspaper to the Frankfort street address and collected from the man charged with shooting at him, just the other day," Culley said.

Arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon was George D. Bennett, 28, a motorcycle mechanic living at 38 Frankfort St., Daly City.

Bennett is single and lives alone, police said.

The newsboy was walking along the street about 5 a.m. when Bennett suddenly appeared in the doorway with the shotgun, according to police.

Bennett reportedly told police he thought the boy was a burglar who was trying to steal his parked motorcycle.

Work on Highways Proposed

Three state highway construction projects in San Mateo County presently stalled for lack of funds would be reactivated by a new six-year highway program proposed by the Department of Transportation.

The proposed projects include widening El Camino Real between Arroyo Drive and Hickey Boulevard in South San Francisco, roadway construction between La Honda Creek Bridge and Skyline Boulevard, and roadway reconstruction between Broadway and the San Francisco Airport overcrossing.

Seniors' Tax Form Due

The deadline for filing senior citizens property tax assistance forms is Aug. 31, according to Donald Whitney, director of the state's Tax Franchise Board.

He said anyone eligible for assistance payments should file applications immediately.

To qualify, a person must be 62 as of Jan. 1, 1976, own and live in his home and have less than $10,000 annual income.

During the year, the department expects to disburse $51 million to more than 300,000 senior citizens, or an average of $170 per claimant.

Recruiting Urged for County Manager Post

"It's going to take a lot of good recruiting" to select a successor to County Manager M.D. Tarshes, according to William H. Royer, chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Royer said Aug. 4 that he plans to get the board members together soon to discuss what procedures the board should follow in seeking someone to fill the post of county manager.

Tarshes announced unexpectedly to the board Aug. 3 that he intends to resign from the $52,950-a-year position as of next Jan. 31.

"We have to get started right away and give it the attention it needs," Royer said.

The board chairman said the position will not be an easy one to fill. There no doubt will be lots of applicants, he said, but the board will have to do some extensive work to select someone qualified for the job.

Jones

would not be using this subcommittee for his own political purposes," Couch said.

The attorney said the visit to Neal's office followed anyway.

The hearings which Jones was to have attended were eventually held on June 8, 9, 10 and 24, according to Bob Shepherd, legislative assistant to Rep. Neal.

"No testimony, either written or oral was received from Mr. Jones," Shepherd said Friday. "We received Mr. Jones' press release here, and I was surprised that anyone would put out that kind of information when it can so easily be checked out."

Asked by The Times to explain the discrepancies between his press release and the statements by Rep. Neal and Shepherd, Jones conceded Friday that the May 10 press release was in error.

"Let me respond to a couple of things," Jones said in an interview at The Times. "Our press release was made in advance of the trip.

"Naturally, I was disappointed by the protocol of Congress that I could neither talk to the subcommittee or the (House Banking and Currency) committee," Jones said.

Jones said the invitation came following a discussion with Carl Mintz, a Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee statistician, but it was withdrawn after it became known that Jones was running for office.

Mintz, however, denied Friday that any invitation had ever been extended to Jones.

Jones was asked to explain his Aug. 1 newsletter which continued to carry news of his "testimony" before the subcommittee. Was it erroneous?

"Yes, that inside newsletter is something that has been hanging around for awhile," Jones said. "It only went to supporters of the campaign, and was not for public consumption."

Jones was asked about his May 10 release. After Jones saw it had been published by at least four newspapers, did he contact them to correct the erroneous information?

"I really didn't see it published in any papers," Jones declared.

"The statements made in the press were not in conformance with our press release, and I will not take responsibility for that," Jones added. "If any member of the press had a concern about a possible misstatement in the press release, they should have come to me with it."

Regarding his Aug. 1 newsletter, Jones said "it should not have been written as it was."

Jones said he was given advice by former Belmont councilman Ed Vallerga some time ago that he should never ask the press to clarify errors.

"I just grit my teeth, even if it's an error of tremendous substance," Jones said. "It just makes matters worse to do that.

"I'll just try to come out in the future with a statement which reflects my true feelings," Jones said, in explaining his press philosophy.

"The reason why I couldn't present it (the testimony) was because I'm a candidate for office," Jones said.

"Something's wrong when this kind of 'Mickey Mouse' happens," Jones said, "and so it did go through my mind that we should issue a statement that this had happened.

"But then I felt this would be 'sour grapes'," Jones explained.

And about the Aug. 1 newsletter?

"I didn't feel it that important to look at the newsletter," Jones said. "I had other things of greater press to be concerned with.

"What stuck in my mind was the need to alert the people of the committee of the kind of activities that the fed (Federal Reserve System) is engaged in," Jones added.

"That was the prime thing in the release, that's what I was hoping for," he said, "that the written testimony would at least be extracted or partly used."

"People should know how much pressure there is to protect the incumbent," Jones said, referring to the denial of his testimony. "This kind of 'Mickey Mouse' should be brought to the public's attention."

North County Jury Agrees

Dog Owner Found Guilty

By JANET PARKER

Brisbane sentry dog owner Rudolf Christians was found guilty by a jury in North County Court Thursday on nine counts of animal neglect.

After two days of deliberations, the jury could not reach a verdict on nine additional charges that Christians had neglected the guard dogs at his Canine Protection Agency.

Christians was arrested Jan. 8 when the Peninsula Humane Society raided his kennel — a converted warehouse — at 505 Tunnel Road in Brisbane.

At the time, the Peninsula Humane Society said it was the biggest seizure of dogs to ever occur in this county.

After a two-week trial, the jury also found Christians, 23, guilty of failing to put identification tags on guard dogs and of overworking guard dogs.

He was found not guilty on a charge that he failed to visit guards dogs in a 12-hour period.

Other charges dealing with the registration of dogs were dismissed.

Judge Charles Becker said Christians will be sentenced on Sept. 10.

More than 40 dogs were taken by Humane Society officers and subsequently give away, after being cared for in a Pacifica kennel.

However, Christians was charged with the neglect of only 18.

Christians' attorney, Craig Collins, said in his closing arguments that Christians was aware some dogs in the kennel had mange. However, he said the owner was attempting to control the outbreak with medicine.

He attempted to establish that the Humane Society had set up the raid to gain publicity for the construction of its new facility.

Collins also critized the Humane Scoiety's handling of the arrest and the raid on the kennel. The raid was covered by all local media including television and newspapers.

Christians was not at the kennel when it was raided but was arrested several hours later at his Brisbane home.

He also testified in his own behalf that he had been trying to control the mange. He said the Humane Society gave no indication it was concerned about the condition of the kennel during regular inspections.

Humane Society officials had sat in the courtroom during the trial.

The jury during deliberations presumably examined the photos of the 18 dogs presented in evidence by Deputy District Atty. Eric Ebbel.

Ebbel had said in his closing statement that the condition of the kennel was poor — with rats from a nearby garbage dump running in and out of the open warehouse doorways.

He reminded the jury that one of Christians' own witnesses, a manager of the kennel, had testified that three quarters of the 18 dogs were not fit for guard duty.

All the charges are misdemeanors.

SSF, Considers School Closing

A committee that will study the possible need to close a school in the South San Francisco Unified School District is being formed by the board of trustees.

Spurred by declining enrollment projections, the trustees designated the membership of that committee Tuesday.

It will include a parent from each of the 14 elementary schools, a classified employe, a teacher, an administrator, a student and three representatives at large from the entire community.

The board receives yearly enrollment projections from Dr. Edward La Franchi of University of Southern California.

In his projections for the 22-school district from 1976 to 1981, La Franchi predicted there will be large declines in kindergarten through the ninth grade until 1981.

"The elementary school enrollment has now dropped to a level which permits the closing of one school," La Franchi said.

"Substantial savings can be achieved by discontinuing the operation of a school and assigning the pupils attending that school to other schools."

Supt. Dr. Paul Nielsen said La Franchi's enrollment projections have been remarkably accurate. His projection for 1975-76, Nielsen said, was in error by only 1.8 per cent.

Trustees indicated that the committee need not recommend specifically that a school be closed.

Nielsen said the closing of one school represents a savings of $100,000 a year.

"Whatever portion of the community loses a civic center . . . that's a factor you can't get away from," Nielsen said.

Board members, however, agreed that if the committee does recommend closing a school to compensate for declining enrollment, a specific school should be mentioned.

Nielsen said he doubted the committee would accept that task.

I feel if their recommendation is to close a school, you will get the ball," he said.

Trustee Val Lambertson pointed out that other methods of compensating for declining enrollment, including closing only part of a school.
